

Huaka'i Aloha 'Āina O Wai'anae

Kumu

Dietrich Varez

Join the Movement to Save Farm Land in Wai'anae Because true food security for Hawai'i is a kakou thing

Settled over 2,000 years ago, the moku of Wai'anae is one of the first areas on O'ahu inhabited by Hawaiians in wa kahiko (traditional times). Well-suited for both wet and dry land agriculture, Wai'anae was O'ahu's "breadbasket," with perennial streams irrigating fertile crop lands and contributing to Wai'anae's abundant ocean fishing grounds.

The Wai'anae "breadbasket" is still there with many small farms working to produce food for Hawai'i nei.

Come join the effort to protect and restore the farming traditions of Wai'anae for the benefit of everyone in Hawai'i.

Stops include: Ka'olae in Lualualei Valley, the Wai'anae Farmers' Market, and MA'O Farms.

Wai'anae Farmland Bus Tour

Save Ka'olae!

Saturday July 24, 2010
8:00 AM $15 per person

Meet in the parking lot at the Wai'anae Campus of Leeward Community College.

86-088 Farrington Highway
(next to Longs', behind Cathay Inn)

Seating is limited. Please RSVP by July 22nd to Marti at 524-8220
or marti@kahea.org

Board the bus at LCC-Wai'anae for a 5-hour tour. Bus departs at 8:15 am. Donation collected to off-set transportation costs. Pay with cash or check payable to KAHEA. Please bring your water and your lunch or purchase lunch at the Wai'anae Farmers' Market during the tour.

Tour is hosted in conjunction with the Concerned Elders of Wai'anae, Mālama Mākua, Wai'anae Historical Society, Nani o Wai'anae, Nanaikapono Hawaiian Civic Club, American Friends Service Committee, and KAHEA.
Tour made possible by a grant from Hawai'i's People Fund and Hawai'i Community Foundation.